Biography of Stuart Hart (20 September 1923 – 23 October 2016)

Stuart was born in Huddersfield in the north of England and left school in the early war years aged 16 to become a trainee engineer with the Stockton-on-Tees Council. The Recruiting Board allowed him to complete an engineering degree and then directed him to the Ministry of Aircraft Production.

After the War and additional professional qualifications he worked in war-damaged Plymouth where he met his wife Pamela, a teacher from Cambridge. They were married in Bristol and their three children were born in Leamington Spa

Stuart was working for the Fife County Council in Scotland when he was appointed SA's State Planner, with the principal task of preparing a plan to guide the growth of Metropolitan Adelaide

There was intense public interest and concern about Adelaide's future in the late 1950's. Migrants were flooding in, Elizabeth's first houses were being built, Marion's almond Trees were disappearing and land on the face of the Adelaide Hills was being quarried and subdivided

The Metropolitan Development Plan that Stuart and his team prepared was submitted to State Parliament in 1962 and its basic recommendations continue to guide Adelaide's expansion

The award of a study fellowship enabled Stuart to observe town planning in the USA during 1963. The family went with him, the children continuing their education by correspondence course with Adelaide.

Subsequently, completely new planning legislation enabled planning measures to be introduced throughout the state. Some of the principle matters with which Stuart was closely involved included establishing the Hill's Face Zone, The Metropolitan Adelaide Transport Study MATS, selecting the site for the new town of Monarto, the Heysen Trail, location of the Festival Centre and establishing local government in Whyalla

Stuart's public service was recognised in the 1983 Queen's New Year's Honours List by the award of Companion of the Imperial Service Order (ISO). He received a Centenary Medal in 2003 and was appointed an Officer of the Order of Australia (AO) in 2012

Stuart and Pamela joined the Australian retired Person's Association ARPA (SA) following his retirement in 1983, and he was elected to the Council in 1984. He drafted a new constitution and served 6 years as President. Stuart wrote a monthly article for the ARPA News on a wide variety of subjects for many years. He published a book of his articles at age 87.
