What we offer

Our team is committed to working in partnership with your organisation to achieve your strategic goals. To do this, we're proud to offer a range of customisable professional development solutions.

In-person short courses

Our in-person short courses are typically delivered over one to two days and provide an immersive, practice-focused learning experience. Bespoke packages of in-person short courses can also be developed to support the capability needs of your team or organisation. If you don't see an existing course that meets your requirements, we can design a fully tailored short course aligned to your priorities, context and workforce goals.

Online short courses

Our online short courses offer a practical, scalable and cost-effective way to build a culture of learning across your organisation. Most courses run for four to six weeks and require just one to two hours of learning per week. With a wide range of in-demand topics suitable for organisations of all sizes and sectors, our online courses provide flexibility without compromising quality. We also offer online short course packages that bring together complementary courses to support your team or organisation.

Flexible options and pricing

Group pricing is available when you enrol three or more staff from your organisation. Whether you're considering in-person delivery, online learning or a combination of both, we can tailor a coordinated short course solution that meets the need of your organisation.

Professional development programs

We specialise in developing customised professional development programs for organisations, tailored to meet your specific needs and developed through a collaborative discovery and co-design process. We can develop customised programs for all levels within your organisation, including emerging, middle and senior leaders, incorporating topics including leadership development, strategy and change, organisational culture, Artificial Intelligence, financial management and more. This process also identifies opportunities to integrate profiling tools, coaching or mentoring sessions, and pathway options. Each program is underpinned by your organisation's context, capability frameworks, and desired outcomes.

Like our range of short courses, you can enrol staff in Adelaide University's flagship six-month Leadership and Management Essentials Program and receive a group discount, or, depending on the size of your team, arrange for the Program to be delivered exclusively for your organisation.

Technical training solutions

By collaborating with our peers — world-leading academics within Adelaide University — we're able to develop highly personalised and technical training to address immediate or emerging needs within your organisation. Think topics like artificial intelligence and machine learning, digital transformation, spirit production and space sector fundamentals.

Delivering real-world outcomes for organisations across Australia

“Our people have appreciated the sense of investment the Airport is making in their development. Many mentioned feeling more confident in stepping up to new challenges, and some have even said the courses sparked fresh motivation and career aspirations.”

Travis Davies

Learning & Development Manager, Adelaide Airport Limited

“I was really impressed with the amount of time the University spent to make sure the training was fit for purpose and tailored to the work we do. Before, during, and after the training the team was incredibly responsive, professional, and easy to work with. It was a fantastic experience, overwhelmingly positive and we’re keen to do more together.”

Curtis McKay

Executive Manager - SA & ACT CTP, AAMI

“The team from the University have been incredibly engaged and have a strong desire to collaborate to make sure our participants get the best outcomes from the content delivered. We’ve had great feedback from our own graduates and staff members about the opportunity to be educated, be invested in and to set themselves up for success moving forward.”

Nicolle Cantone

Program Director, South Australian Government
Department of Treasury and Finance
